

SYNOPSIS

THE BUYER'S SELLER

Alberto Cançado goes to the store to buy a toy for his son's birthday, and when he asks for the invoice, he begins to find difficulties for the company to issue the requested invoice. The seller, whose name is Enrolino, uses all the tricks in order to make the client give up waiting for the invoice. In this arm wrestling, someone will have to give up their goal, one of not wanting to issue the invoice, the other to require the issuance of the invoice.
